DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of Species I (Claims 1-11, 17-25) in the reply filed on 07/05/2005 is acknowledged.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 7/5/2005 and 12/12/2003 have been considered by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 1-3,6,7,9-11,17-20,24-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Madsen et al. (US 5, 600,500), hereinafter, Madsen, in view of Fujiwara et al., hereinafter, Fujiwara (US 6,914,738 B2).

Madsen et al. discloses a method of optimizing a recording current, comprising: selecting a recording parameter value corresponding to a smallest rate of errors; and optimizing the recording current for the hard disk drive under operating environmental conditions using the selected recording parameter value (as depicted in Fig.3 & abstract & col.4, lines 14-27, col.8, lines 40-55).

Madsen fails to particularly disclose measuring a rate of errors under a test condition corresponding to an operating temperature of a hard disk drive, while changing a recording parameter. However, Fujiwara discloses such (col.1, lines 52-62, col.8, lines 50-57). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify upon Madsen's method by implementing a step such as disclosed by Fujiwara, the motivation being because it would provide Madsen's method with the enhanced capability of setting an optimum current by taking into consideration parameters that are dependent upon the environment in which the magnetic disk unit is used, such as temperature (as taught by Fujiwara col.1, lines 25-27, 57-62).

As to Claim 2-3, the combination further discloses wherein when the test condition corresponds to a low temperature and room temperature (as depicted in Fig.3 of Fujiwara, note Fujiwara adjusts the temperature to a desired level), data is recorded on a target track a predetermined number of times, and the data is read from the target track a predetermined number of times (as depicted in Fig.3, "82" of Madsen).

As to Claim 6, Fujiwara further discloses, wherein the recording parameter is an overshoot current (OSC) (abstract).

As to Claim 7 & 9, Madsen further discloses a graph illustrating the recording parameter versus rate of errors (as depicted in Figs. 5-9), where the rate error is one of a bit error rate (BER).

As to Claim 10, Fujiwara further discloses wherein the method is performed for at least one recording head and at least one data zone of a disk of the hard disk drive (as depicted in Figs.14, 18-19).

As to Claim 11, Madsen further discloses wherein the selected recording parameter values are recorded on a system cylinder of the disk of the hard disk drive (as depicted in Fig.1).

As to Claims 17-20, 24-25 have limitations similar to those treated in the above rejections, and are met by the references as discussed above.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 4-5,8,21-23 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure: Takahashi (US 6,101,053); Lee et al. (US 2003/0112541); Kassab (US 5,687,036); Chung (US 6,069,758), Sloan et al. (US 6,252,731 B1).
